AIMS AND SCOPE

The journal "Communications in Mathematics and Applications" is an international journal devoted to quick publication of original and high quality research in almost all branches of mathematics and its applications. Areas such as Analysis, algebra and applications receive particular emphasis. However the journal avoids specialization.

To ensure speedy publication, only articles which are sufficiently well presented, containing significant results and not required major revisions will be considered. Papers are accepted only after peer review. The journal will also publish survey articles giving details of research progress made during the last three decades in a particular area. The journal will be published thrice a year.
